Neighborhood built environment and late-life depression: a multilevel path analysis in a Chinese society

About the Speaker:

Professor Lum is the Henry G. Leong Professor in Social Work and Social Administration at the University of Hong Kong. His research interests focus on long-term care, productive aging, geriatric mental health, and social capital. He is an advisor to the Hong Kong Government on long-term care and has led the development of new assessment instruments and services matching mechanisms for long-term care in Hong Kong. He is an invited member of two WHO committees on healthy aging and long-term care. Before returning to HK, he was a tenured professor at the University of Minnesota. He was elected as a Fellow of the Gerontological Society of America in 2011 and was awarded the Career Leadership Award by the Association of Gerontology Education in Social Work in 2016. Professor Lum is an editor of the Journal of Aging and Mental Health.

IN-CARE (Inequality in Care): How are varying care systems associated with inequalities in care and well-being in later life?

About the Speaker:

Professor Karen Glaser is a Professor of Gerontology and was Head of Department of Global Health & Social Medicine at King’s College London. Originally from the US, Karen came to Britain after finishing her PhD in Sociology at the University of Michigan. Karen is currently leading a three-year cross-research council consortium across five institutions on ‘The impact of extending paid work in later life on health and wellbeing’. The research examines how inequalities across the life course relate to paid work in later life in the UK.
